ABOUT:

The 2026 Harlem Culture Crawl welcomes neighbors and visitors alike to experience Harlem as both home and destination - a place where culture is lived, shared, and continuously reimagined. Across iconic spaces like the Morris-Jumel Mansion, the Harlem School of the Arts, the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture, and the Studio Museum in Harlem, the Crawl brings together institutions that have long shaped Harlem’s cultural landscape. Rooted in the legacy of the Harlem Renaissance, these spaces honor history and memory while uplifting new voices in art, music, and storytelling. Whether you are rediscovering your neighborhood or exploring it for the first time, the Harlem Culture Crawl offers an open invitation to connect - with the stories, the creativity, and the people who continue to define Harlem today.

Uncovering Uptown History: A Guided Walking Tour

Morris-Jumel Mansion guides bring you along a series of hidden historic gems of New York history in the brand-new "Uncovering Uptown History" guided walking tour: a 90-minute, one-mile mobile experience beginning at the Morris-Jumel Mansion and ending at Trinity Cemetery on Broadway and 155th. Spanning over 260 years, this tour illuminates little-known corners of the Revolutionary War, the Gilded and Industrial Ages, the Harlem Renaissance, and more, connecting the paths of legendary figures with the ones we walk today. Perfect for locals, hard to impress history buffs, and tourists looking beyond well-known sites of New York City.

Dress seasonably and wear your walking shoes. The walk is considered easy to moderately challenging.

Tickets are free but limited and must be reserved here:

Saturday and Sunday 10:00 am – 4:00 pm. FREE

In 1802, Alexander Hamilton built a country home in the pastoral fields of a neighborhood now known as Hamilton Heights. It was the only home he ever owned and is where he resided when he famously lost his life in a duel with Aaron Burr. American history lovers will appreciate Hamilton's Federalist style home, and it's also off the beaten path for people who want to see a more residential, quieter face of New York City.

Saturday 10:00 AM – 5:45 PM FREE

Celebrate the opening of Schomburg Center's exhibition "To Uncover and Reveal to the World: Arturo Schomburg's Library"

Before the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture, there was the library of Arturo "Arthur" Schomburg: race man, bookworm, and scholar of the African diaspora. Join us for the opening of our newest exhibition To Uncover and Reveal to the World: Arturo Schomburg's Library beginning at 12 Noon. Throughout the day there will be art-making activities that draw visitors into the details of bookmaking. The exhibition showcases more than one hundred items from the famous bibliophile's original collection, which The New York Public Library acquired in 1926—establishing the basis for the Schomburg Center's vast collections.

Art Exhibition: Stepping Out: The Unapologetic Style of African Americans Over Fifty

Born in South Korea to a Korean mother, and a Black American soldier, Milton grew up an outsider until his adoption by a Black military family at eight. From those beginnings, he became a college athlete and multi-hyphenate creative, channeling his unique identity into his art and his relationship with Blackness. His photography celebrates the beauty, style, and layered presence of Black life, captured entirely on his iPhone.

The exhibition includes selections from Stepping Out: The Unapologetic Style of African Americans Over Fifty, created with Connie Briscoe - a vibrant exploration of Black elders' fashion, stories, and spirit.

The Historic Fire Watch Tower Tour, Marcus Garvey Park
East 122nd Street, New York, NY

The Fire Watchtower in Marcus Garvey Park has been a symbol of Harlem since 1856. In the 1800s, it was one of a series of cast iron towers built throughout New York City, but it is the only one of its kind remaining in New York. The watchtower provided a perch atop Mount Morris for firefighters to keep watch over the community and alert the local fire company if a fire broke. The tower was decommissioned in the 1870s when pull boxes rendered watchtowers obsolete. While the other watchtowers throughout the city were torn down, the Harlem community rallied to protect this one - and that community has continued to advocate on behalf of this special structure ever since. Urban Park Rangers will host a Firewatch tower tour on May 16 from 3:30 PM - 5:00 PM. Meeting point is the Acropolis in Marcus Garvey Park.

Sylvia's Soul Food Restaurant

328 Malcolm X Blvd. (Lenox Avenue) near W 126th Street

For more than 60 years, Sylvia's Restaurant has been serving up more than just food. We've been serving love, legacy, and Harlem hospitality. When Sylvia Woods opened her restaurant on Lenox Avenue in 1962, she couldn't have imagined that her fried chicken and collard greens would draw guests from all over the world. What started with a handful of tables and a whole lot of heart quickly became the heartbeat of Harlem - a gathering place for families, friends, leaders, and legends.
